

Wendover

– Open Water

Where to Stay: I stay at Best Western Wendover.

When: 11am Saturday (Boise time) - I'll drive down Saturday morning.

Where: Arby's (in Wendover)

Sunday: Meet at the lake at 9:00 or at the Best Western at 8:30.

What you need:

Clothes

In Wendover, the weather is a bit unpredictable. Some days it's calm and sunny, some days it rains, some days the wind blows across the desert. Bring clothes for a Cold day, a Warm day, and a Rainy day. As well, pack an extra jacket, a blanket and a couple of towels.

Equipment

3 tanks per person.

Wetsuit (upper and lower)

Weight (extra weight as well)

Regulator

BCD (with Submersible Pressure Gauge, depth gauge, timing device. Or, dive computer)

Fins/mask/snorkel/boots

Other

Dive Log (this can be a normal notebook, or one with specialized dive log pages)

Tarp on which to put all your gear together to keep dirt off your equipment.

Food

Diving takes a lot of energy.

Bring something for lunch.

Bring snacks.

Bring a lot of water.

The Lake

Blue lake is geothermally heated from the bottom. It's approximately 60 feet deep with several platforms and many things for divers to explore. Water temperature is 65 -78 degrees year round. (I'll tend to wear a wetsuit upper and be just fine). However, the walk back to the cars is generally cold. The lake / parking lot / etc. is covered by a fine layer of silt on the bottom that can get stirred up. It gets everywhere. Use a tarp.

It's about a 100 yard walk from parking to the entry.
